Agricultural economist with doctorate for forage production.

We are looking for you:

The International Center for Agricultural Research in the Dry Areas (ICARDA) needs your expertise to develop improved methods of producing forage for small ruminants. The Center was founded in 1977 and is a member of the CGIAR Consortium of international agricultural research centers. Its development-oriented agricultural research helps improve the living conditions of the local rural population in arid regions. One of ICARDA's focal areas of research is identifying measures specific to locations and target groups which enable small farming households to optimise their husbandry of small ruminants. Research into improving the production of forage and innovative pasture farming are key aspects of this approach.

Your tasks will involve:

- Design, monitor and evaluate research trials to improve forage production and feeding systems
- Adapting new methods of forage production to smallholdings in dryland countries
- Supporting the coordination of ongoing research programmes and cooperation with ICARDA's partners
- Preparing project proposals for external funding.

Your profile:

- A doctorate in agriculture with a focus on grassland farming/forage production, or in another subject qualifying you for the position
- Several years of professional experience in planning and implementing interdisciplinary research projects, ideally in animal husbandry in arid regions
- A proven track record of publishing in this field
- Business fluency in English and good French
- In addition you have the citizenship of an EU member state

What we offer:

- Varied tasks, which you will be expected to carry out self-responsibly in an international environment
- Cooperation with other development cooperation organisations
- Professional preparation for your assignment abroad
- Local employment contract as an integrated expert for an initial period of two years - contract may be extended
- Attractive monthly top-up payments in addition to local salary and social benefits
