

The University of Luxembourg invites applications for its Faculty of Language and Literature, Humanities, Arts and Education (FLSHASE)

Doctoral candidate (PhD assistant) in Geography and Spatial Planning

Ref: F3-130010 (numéro de poste)

14 months fixed-term contract, renewable up to 48 months, full-time (40h/week)

Student & employee status

Area: one of the research fields mentioned below, such as

- Human geography, i.e. with regard to conceptions of space and territory
- Urban studies, preferably theoretical or empirical explorations
- Urban and metropolitan governance, i.e. conceptions of power
- The science-policy interface in geography and planning
- Port cities, logistics and urban planning
- Land use planning, housing and sustainable spatial development

Mission

- Prepare a doctoral thesis in Geography (see the possible research fields above)
- Assist the professor in his teaching activities, one to three hours per week.

Profile

- Master or Diploma in Geography or Spatial Planning/Urban Planning; Master or Diploma in Political Science, History or other Humanities/Social Sciences linked to geographical issues
- Strong interest in urban development, policy and planning
- Interest in interdisciplinary work and a reflective methodology
- Excellent command of written and spoken English. (Additional knowledge of either French or German is an advantage)

Offer

- Opportunity to participate in the development of a newly created university
- An exciting international environment
- A competitive salary
- Well-equipped research facilities

Contact :

Prof. Dr. Markus Hesse, Institute of Geography and Spatial Planning: Tel.
+352/466644-9627

Application

Interested candidates are invited to send their complete application exclusively through the on-line application system of the UL (<http://recruitment.uni.lu/>), until 30th November 2017.